THIRTY-EIGHTH YEAR NO. 39.

CEARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1915

PRICE, $1.00 A YEAR

Chautauqua Program Of High Standard

Audience Appreciative of Program Which Means
Another Next Year--Sale of Tickets Exceeds Expectations--Weather Conditions Favorable for Large Crowds.

The second annual chautauqua for Cedarville opened Monday afternoon with a program that has pleased the ticket holders and established a precedent that will call for a more extensive program in another year. When president McMichael announced that the ticket sale had exceeded the guarantee by nearly $100 he was given a round of applause. It must also be taken into consideration that this sale was made against the strongest odds due to the lateness of the season, opening of schools and uncertain weather.

The equipment furnished by the Coit-Alber Company is up to the usual standard and everything was done for the comfort of the people that was possible. The location of the tent on the college campus was nearer the street this year which brought many favorable comments. It also enabled automobile owners to park their machines along the street making it easier to handle the crowds.

Mr. C. A. Brown was superintendent and kept the audience informed as to the program as well as looking after the Coit-Alber business locally. Mr. Brown has been in the employ of the Coit people for some time and is thoroughly informed along his line.

The opening number was Dorva DeLeon Company of Boston, a trio of musicians that played "Wooden Shoes" and "The Raggy Old Man." The latter was a story teller in "Helping the World Go Around" kept his audience in laughter. He is a real entertainer and his Southern stories although humorous always hit the mark. His reading of "The Raven" was excellent.

Dr. G. W. Williams, corresponding to the outlook on the war front in Europe brought home to all the terrible experiences and devastations of war. The lecture was illustrated with actual photographs that impressed the audience in a manner never to be forgotten. Dr. Williams was arrested as a spy five times and court-martialed and sentenced to death by the Germans at Brussels and his life was only spared by intervention of the American authorities. Dr. Williams evidently made many converts against the propaganda being carried on in this country by the financial interests that furnished war supplies urging a larger navy and standing army.

Tuesday Dr. G. Whitfield Ray, in an illustrated lecture with scores of curious gathered in South America, gave an insight into that country. Dr. Ray was the official explorer of Bolivia for sixteen years. The speaker of the evening was John R. Boardman, editor of "Countrywide Magazine" delivering a lecture that appealed to community interests. His experience in reaching the low element in the cities, showing the methods employed leading men to a better life. Both sessions of the day were entertained by the Brewer Musical Entertainers, assisted by the noted cornetist, Chester K. Scott one of the leading musicians in his line in the country. This organization was one of the best of the week's program.

CEARVILLE COLLEGE NOTES.

The twenty-second year of Cedarville College opens next Wednesday morning in the College Chapel at 8:30 o'clock. All are cordially invited. The Rev. Henry J. Becker, D. D., Dayton, Ohio, will give the opening address. Dr. Becker has travelled widely about the world. He is eloquent, intellectual, practical, witty, and comes highly recommended. He is a noted Chautauqua lecturer. The exercises will be interspersed with music by a quartette and vocal solos. Mrs. Russell also will play some piano solos.

Registration of students will begin Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and continue Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock and after the opening exercises. Students should be present to register and arrange their schedules of study, purchase their books, and pay their tuition and contingent fees, $18 for the semester which is to be paid on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Recitations will begin Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. The recitations will begin at 8 o'clock each morning and each recitation period will be one hour in length. The attendance in all departments will be materially increased over that of last year.

Work is offered in all the Collegiate Courses, Normal courses, Agricultural courses, Theological courses, Preparatory courses, Piano, Vocal Music, Harmony, Theory, Domestic Science, and Oratory. The work in the preparatory courses is free to all. All the courses in the Theological Seminary are free. The seminary will formally open in connection with the college opening. At that time announcements as to periods of recitation will be made. Special courses in Bible, Sabbath School Work, and missions will be open free to all of both sexes in the seminary. The sessions of the seminary will be held in the afternoon at the Library.

Saturday courses for teachers will open Saturday morning, Sept. 18 at 8 o'clock in College Hall. This will be a splendid opportunity for teachers. All textbooks are to be obtained of Prof. Jurkat at the College Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. The schedule of recitations will be posted in the lower corridor of the College Hall Tuesday morning.

Attack School Law

The new school law has been attacked by former supreme court judge A. N. Summers in the Court of Appeals sitting at Springfield in behalf of Josiah Wogemann of Perry township Montgomery county. It is held that the new school code conflicts with the constitution which provides that all county officers shall be elective. Should the court affirm the contentions the county school board and county superintendent would be relieved of their places and the whole system of this state upset.

ANCIENT QUARREL IS OVER

Two Old Sardinian Families Publicly End Feud That Lasted for Centuries.

A ceremony the like of which had not been seen for centuries has just taken place in Sardinia, the cradle of the Italian vendetta. It was a solemn public reconciliation of two ancient families, the Orsichioni and the Carali, who had been in feud since the middle ages.

A dispute over a question of family honor between these widely ramified houses has led to countless acts of vengeance and those who shrank fighting had to take refuge abroad. In 1844 a reconciliation committee was formed by the bishops of Tempio and Ozieri, the prefect and the commander of the carabinieri and many other notables of the island, but it effected nothing.

It may be that even the Italian vendetta is influenced by modern notions; at all events a solemn reconciliation of the families has been effected before the bishops in the cathedral of Santa Teresa. The present heads of the two families, Advocato Orsichioni and Cavaliere Carali, publicly embraced amid cheers from thousands of Sardinian throats. From all parts of the island came congratulatory messages. To break this peace would be in the eyes of the people an act of sacrilege.

Clifton U. P. Church Chimes.

The mother ought to vote. Kenneth Ritchie visited Roger Collins last Tuesday.

Wealth will not take wings and fly away if you sprinkle a little economy on its tail.

Do not wear the sign of the Juniper tree.

Slogan for Cliftonites--"The best Christian I can be by Jan. 1, 1916."

The church different from any other organization exists for those outside.

Paul Ferguson started last Monday for Monmouth college where he expects to enter the Junior class.

Harvey Finney is improved sufficiently to drive out and bids fair to recover entirely in a short time.

Cecil Rife is leader for Christian Union next Sabbath evening.

The W. M. Society will meet with Mrs. Rife next Wednesday. The meeting will be led by Mesdames George Rife and E. G. Corey.

Local option elections have taken the "ill" out of Illinois, the "in" out of Virginia, and the "tuck out" of Kentucky.

Presbytery meets at Clifton Monday, September 27, at 2 p. m. An interesting conference is being arranged for the evening session.

Carl Collins started to Cedarville High School last Monday; the more schooling and better equipment the greater prospect for success in life.

Mr. William Smith's family by the re-districting of the township have been thrown into the Clifton district making four more pupils for our schools.

Encourage your teacher to read the Scriptures in the public schools. It is as much your business as any one's to see that this matter is not overlooked. Begin at the opening of school.

Miss Carrie Rife has entered on her work in the Selma High School. Miss Rife is principal and Prof. Hayes formerly of Clifton is the principal of the Selma school.

Messrs. W. C. Rife and E. C. Corey were in Springfield Tuesday on business for the church.

Mack Anderson, who had a relapse last week is greatly improved at this writing.

School Brick Are Selected.

The Board of Education met Wednesday forenoon and made a selection of brick to be used in the new school building.

Different brick companies sometimes place sample panels in the alley north of the opera house. The board selected the first panel, a Hocking Valley product, furnished by the Gem City Brick Sales Co., of Dayton.

The order calls for 90 thousand exterior brick at $14 a thousand and 135 thousand interior face brick at $17 a thousand. The former amounts to $1,260 and the latter $2,295 a total of $3,555.

CALHOUN AT THE OCULIST'S

La Follette's Story of the Darky Walk or Applied to Those Who Fear Reciprocity.

United States Senator La Follette, discussing reciprocity, said with a smile:

"These fears are groundless. They are groundless to the point of being ludicrous. They remind me, in fact, of Calhoun Clay."

"Calhoun Clay was a waiter at a seaside restaurant. The white glare of the sun-drenched beach injured his eyes, and he had to consult an oculist. The oculist fitted him out with spectacles, and, as he left the shop with the spectacles on his nose, he gave a great start and halted before a huge and extraordinary machine."

"Calhoun stared in awe at this machine for some time. Then he said: 'What's dat, boss?'"

"That," said the oculist solemnly, "is an ophthalmometer."

"Sho," muttered Calhoun, and he backed further away, his eyes still fixed upon the formidable instrument.

"Sho," dat's what Ah wuz scared it wuz."

Watched.

"No, Herbert," whispered the maid, "you mustn't put your arm around me. We are watched."

Herbert looked around the dimly lighted parlor.

"O, yes," he smiled. "I see there's a rubber plant at the other end of the room."

"What! There's another one that you don't see. Johnny's hiding there!"

"--Above All!" smoke the Bold.

School Opened Grades Crowded.

The public schools opened Monday morning under the most favorable circumstances that could be expected where different grades are crowded.

Dr. J. L. Crenshaw, Rev. J. S. E. McMichael took part in the devotionals after which informal remarks were made by Messrs. Stormont, Collins and Wright.

The classes were assigned and the necessary books ordered for the students after which adjournment was taken until Tuesday.

The following list of enrollment under the teachers is given:

Miss Elizabeth Rife, 23.
Miss Edna Shroeder, 48.
Miss Edna Conley, 48.
Miss Martha B. 48.
Miss Hazel Lowry, 24.
Mr. C. C. Morton, 24.
Total enrollment, 167.

Auto Club Will Visit Cedarville.

Arrangements are being made by members of the Springfield Automobile Club for an afternoon run on Wednesday, Sept. 22 that will include Clifton, Cedarville, Jamestown, Xenia and Yellow Springs.

Some months ago the club had a run west of Clark county and there were 35 cars in line, which gave the club a boost in that direction.

The 101 state automobile license tags will have a solid black back ground with pure white numbers and letters. On the left hand corner will be the word "Ohio" beneath. The figures on the right will be four inches high. The tag will call for 200,000 tags for next year.

David Lowry Bad Man.

David Lowry, of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lowry, of Xenia, but who is now in the city of Springfield, is working on a new model motor plane that will bring into use several ideas of his own.

His model is somewhat different from others in that the weight is slung under the craft. One plane in front of the machine a middle stationary plane and tail in the rear. By the use of universal joints the problem of stabilization will be cared for.

DIPLOMACY IN THE HOTEL

Some People Might Call It Lying, but the Guest Was Quite Satisfied.

"Sometimes it is an awkward matter to get a temporary tenant out of a suite that has been promised for a certain day," a hotel manager said, "and you have to use diplomacy in such a case. Occasionally lying is necessary."

"A man from San Francisco came to us in the busy season and the only thing we could do for him was to detach a room with bath from a suite that was promised for the next day. He was to stay over only one night, anyhow, we understood. But he did not leave and the family we expected came in. I was in a quandary, but as the San Franciscan was downtown I had his clothes and baggage moved out to a room upstairs that fortunately fell vacant. When he came in I thought for a moment and then I said: 'I am sorry, Mr. X, but I have had to move your things out of that room.'"

"Why was that?" he demanded, frowning.

"We discovered that the ceiling was leaking."

"Good gracious! My clothes didn't get wet, did they?" he demanded.

"He was much relieved when I assured him that they didn't, so much so that he made no kick at all."--New York Sun.

"I'll have a general line of staple and fancy groceries always on hand at Willoughby's."

Nichols Founds Institute.

Dr. Roland A. Nichols, whom everyone will remember as a lecturer at the chautauqua last summer and the last lecture course, has founded a Community Development Institute and he will have six assistants. Dr. Nichols will lecture twice daily during the two weeks stay at each place. The purpose of the institute is to bring about better relations between the townspeople and their friends of the community, foster civic pride and bring permanent results in everything essential to the well being of all.

Mrs. Lida Keck Wiggins, woman's editor of the Springfield Sun, and former resident of this place, will speak on "A Bunch of Sweet Pie for Girls" and "The Largest House-keeping." The other speakers will be Sam Lewis, tenor soloist, who directs a choir of 200 voices which will be trained and in readiness in each place upon the arrival of the party; Lee R. McCullough, tabernacle superintendent and Lloyd Mustard, pianist; and Mrs. Nichols who will lecture to mothers.

Conference Assigns M. E. Ministers.

The West Ohio Conference of the M. E. church concluded its sessions in Springfield Monday with the announcement of the assignments by Bishop Anderson.

Rev. C. W. Sullivan of the First M. E. church, Xenia, goes to Bowling Green and Rev. A. J. Kestle of Lebanon goes to the First church, Rev. J. H. Jewett remains at Trinity.

Rev. J. W. Patton was returned to Cedarville much to the pleasure of the congregation and community. Rev. H. C. Clarke, Yellow Springs; Rev. R. J. Coleman, New Jasper; Rev. C. W. Horn, Jamestown; Rev. W. E. Felt, Pleasant Ridge; A. B. Maddox, Carthage; E. T. Waring, South Charleston.

Warm Weather.

Farmers are anxious at this time for at least two weeks of warm dry weather to ripen the corn. Reports are that the crop is well cared but the cool damp weather keeps the grain from developing as it should.

Should the weather continue as it has been the cob will decay and the crop will be lost. Dry weather will add several thousands of dollars to the corn crop. As it is farmers that have silos would not lose so much but few have sufficient silo capacity to care for the entire crop.

Kissed a Dead Cow.

Told that her pet cow that had been struck by a train was so badly injured that the animal would have to be killed, Mrs. Max Johnson, of the foot of Jasper street, Camden, kissed the cow several times and then walked away.

The cow was buried near where it was killed, and a board was placed at the head of the grave by the heart-broken woman, who, between sobs, explained to number of persons that the animal had been the pet of the family for years.--Philadelphia Record.

With Flying Colors

The Incident That Ended His Period of Probation.

By CLARICE ENGLE

A man picked his way slowly along the sun baked trail that led westward to Taggart across the desert. It was high noon and the day had been hot and dry and the man's throat was parched with thirst. This did not tend to lessen his ferocious aspect nor to soften the anger that glowed in his eyes. It was all due to his visit that morning to the little ranch a few miles behind, for there he had met with the first failure in his life. He had proposed and been rejected.

It was not Bill Warren's nature to be balked by anything. He usually carried matters his own way and with a high hand, as a result of which he was looked upon as a sort of local "bad man." But this cognomen was applied to him only by people who did not know Bill. In reality no better nor kinder natured man than he ever rode into Taggart.

But Sue Patterson was one of those who were not intimately acquainted with Warren, and this assertiveness she looked upon as something evil. Therefore, although otherwise she liked Warren better than any other of her admirers, she felt that she was acting quite right when she rejected his offer of marriage.

All the consolation that she had given him in answer to his earnest pleading was that she would put him on an indefinite probation and if he came through it with flying colors why—she would think about it.

All of which Warren took too literally, and he thought that she had spoken thus only to soften her refusal. He became angry at the thought of it. "She don't care nothin' fer me," he muttered savagely, "an' I know why. It's all along of that sneakin' coyote, Ralph Henderson. Been to Frisco an' seen a few things an' comes out here to lord it over us. I know the brand. She's plumb loco over the cuss, too, an' he ain't no man. No," he finished spitefully, "he ain't no man."

He rode on across the desert in a sort of dulled consciousness, with his hat pulled well down over his eyes. At length, toward the middle of the afternoon, he came into the foothills. Before him lay the foothills of "Time," the largest mountain in that vicinity. Beyond it, ten miles to the westward, was Taggart. This necessitated his taking the trail that wound round the slope of the mountain. This trail was hardly more than a well trodden footpath and was only wide enough to permit a single rider upon it. One side of it sloped up at an angle of almost eighty degrees. The other formed the side of a precipice that dropped 200 feet to the sandy ravine below.

As he rode over the trail, lost in thought, Warren was dead to external sounds. He did not notice the flapping of his horse nor his frightened whinnies. He had no intimation whatever that any one was approaching along the trail from the opposite direction. And yet not a hundred feet ahead of him a horse and rider were rounding the curve of the mountain. Neither noticed the other until they were fifty feet apart. Then by some strange intuition both raised their heads. Recognition was mutual and instantaneous, for the man ahead of Warren was Ralph Henderson.

The faces of both men paled with fear. Not in years had two men met on that narrow trail, and it seemed some strange intervention of destiny that it should be Warren and Henderson. While the face of the cattleman grew anxious, that of Henderson became quickly overshot with a crafty cunning.

"Hello!" he drawled pleasantly. "Hello!" muttered Warren nervously.

"Well, what are we going to do about it?" the city man continued. "It looks as if you'd have to go back."

"Not by a — sight!" snapped Warren. "There's no turning about for either of us. We'll have to manage to pass each other. The place seems pretty wide here."

"Flip a coin for the inner side," suggested the other, suddenly reaching a hand into his pocket.

"Right," agreed Warren, "but let's have a look at it first."

Henderson's face turned scarlet and he stayed his hand. "I declare, I'm all out of coin," he rattled sheepishly.

"Here's an eagle," replied Warren.

you, with narrow eyes. "Heave her up! Heads I pass on the inside, tails I pass on the outside."

He tossed the coin to Henderson as he spoke, who, pale faced and hesitating, fumbled with it a moment and let it fly up into the air with a swirl of a veteran trickster. It fell down on the trail at their feet, ringing out clear and cold.

"Tails!" cried the city man, overcome with excitement. His face resumed something of its natural color and the old craftiness stole into his eyes.

Warren accepted his fate nonchalantly, although he knew that it might mean death for him. There was one thing about it, however, that galled him. He well knew that Henderson was on his way to "s" Patterson ranch, and it came to him as a rather bitter thought that he might have to play the martyr and sacrifice his own life in order that the man could do so. But without a word he pressed his pony's ribs with his heels and rode forward.

Henderson had drawn his horse as close as he could against the side of the mountain, but he seemed overtaken by a fit of nervousness, for the reins shook in his hands and the color came and went in his dark cheeks.

The ledge where Warren would have to pass Henderson was somewhat wider than the rest of the trail, and he rode forward light hearted and confident that he would easily accomplish it. But just as he brushed against the side of Henderson the latter suddenly drove his spurs with great force against his horse's ribs. With a snort of terror the animal plunged madly forward, dislodging the other horse and rider and sending them hurtling down and over the edge of the precipice. Then he went careening down the slope.

The breath went out of Warren as soon as he felt himself falling, and under the sickening sensation that ensued he lost consciousness. A stinging pain in his leg finally awoke him. Bruised and bleeding, he now sat up and gazed about him. He had landed in the branches of a tree that jutted out from the slope of the mountain. Down below on the sand he could see the form of his horse, dead as a stone.

The first thing Warren did was to swear. Then he looked to his leg. It had been broken just below the knee. As he started to wrap his handkerchief about it he heard a sound from above. Over the rim of the precipice a bushy head was peering.

"Hello!" it called. "Kin ye manage ef I send down a rope?" "Sure," Warren yelled back.

A minute later the end of a lariat came whirling down through space. Warren caught it, made it fast about his body, and then, clinging to it with both hands ordered the man above to hoist away. A few moments later he crawled up over the ledge and lay panting for breath at old Jim Patterson's feet.

"I seen the hull thing, Bill," began the latter as he undid the rope about the man's body. "Henderson will swing for this or I'll shoot him on sight. I was comin' along a mite behind him an' I seen him jab the buccasin and then shoot." But Warren was unconscious before the man finished speaking, and Patterson lifted him up on his pony after great difficulty and started down the trail for home.

When Warren next regained consciousness he was lying on a bed in a dimly lighted room. Soft hands were bandaging his head and soothing words fell from the lips of their owner. Warren opened his eyes and took in the situation at a glance.

"Sue," he demanded fiercely, "has that skunk been here?" "Sh!" she murmured, touching a finger to his lips. "He has not been here. Evidently he has skipped the country. Father has told me all about it—the honorable way in which you acted and Henderson's treachery. You have indeed behaved splendidly."

"Sue!" cried the man eagerly, starting up.

"Be quiet!" she admonished smilingly. "Then she added, 'Your probation is over, and you have come through it nobly.'"

And then Warren claimed his own.
